Florence McAfee, head of the women's physical education department until her retirement last spring, was found dead March 23 in her hotel room in New York. At the time of her retirement, Miss McAfee was the senior member of the Eastern faculty, having come to Eastern in 1924. She received her bachelor's degree from Pennsylvania State College in 1923, the master's from Columbia University in 1932, and the Ph.D. from New York University in 1940.

Miss LaVelle McKinnie of Kankakee, Ill., a freshman music major at Eastern, won a $5,000 college scholarship from the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour in February. Miss McKinnie made her debut in the television show in June 1960 and then sang her way through five more rounds of competition to become the Ted Mack grand national champion. She sang Italian Street Song from "The Naughty Marietta" during her final sixth-round performance in New York on Dec. 23, 1962.

One member of the women's physical education faculty was killed and another seriously injured Feb. 26 in an automobile accident on U. S. 40 near St. Jacob, Ill. Killed was Miss Julia R. Denham, assistant professor and instructor of dance. Injured was Miss Marise Daves, also an assistant professor. Miss Daves is now at her home at 18 Miller, Charleston. She is not expected to return to her teaching duties this spring. Illinois State Police said the accident occurred when an automobile driven by Bernardo D'Ugo of Lake Peekskill, N. Y., attempted to pass another auto. D'Ugo was killed.

Revenue bonds in the amount of $2.4 million were sold by the Teachers College Board at its March meeting to finance construction of a nine-story residence hall at Eastern. Low bidders for the bond issue were Kidder, Peabody & Co., New York, at an interest rate of 3.5175 per cent. Contracts for the construction of the residence hall were also awarded by the Board. The new hall for women will be located on South Campus (in the vicinity of the old archery range) adjacent to the four-story hall now under construction. The four-story structure, which is to house men, is scheduled for occupancy next fall.

Dr. Louis M. Grado, associate professor of education at Eastern, is now producing a TV kindergarten in Nicaragua, Central America. Currently on a two-year leave as elementary education advisor with the U. S. AID Mission in Nicaragua. Dr. Grado convenes his pre-schoolers at 6 p.m. each Saturday in a television station in Managua. The televised classroom sessions vary each week, with the teacher, Sra. Azucena Armijo de Quintanilla, telling a story, leading a game, or helping the children make a Christmas tree. Purpose of the experiment is to test new teaching methods for children of pre-school age. "We are using the program to develop a new concept of education for the pre-school age children in Nicaragua," said Dr. Grado.

Community Plans For Quality In Education

With local control and university leadership, the Olney project may provide an answer to an old problem

September 3, 1963, may be the biggest day in the lives of several young men and women living within daily driving distance of Olney, Ill.

On that date a number of capable high school graduates who might never have had the opportunity to enroll in a four-year university will register for the opening quarter of the Olney Community College.

When classes begin three days later in the two-year college, the citizens and school officials of the East Richland School District will have attained a major goal in their determination to meet the educational needs of their youth. Eastern Illinois University is playing a role in this local effort.

The Olney Community College, to be operated in affiliation with Eastern, is unique in a number of ways. It is the first public-supported junior college in the nation to affiliate with a state university; it is the first public junior college in Illinois to own its campus even before opening its doors; and it is the first junior college in Illinois to have its relationship with a state university approved by a major state governing board for institutions of higher education—the Teachers College Board.

Comprising an area of 256 square miles, almost two-thirds of Richland County, the East Richland District will assume the basic responsibility for the college's operation. The district has an assessed valuation of $42 million. Operating budget for the college during the 1963-64 fiscal year will be between $110,000 and $115,000. A contract between the district's board of education and Eastern calls for the university at Charleston to provide consultative and managerial assistance, primarily in the areas of faculty selection and curriculum development.

Leslie E. Purdy, superintendent of the local district and president of the community college, sees the arrangement between the district and university as a possible answer to the growing needs of higher education.

"Our approach satisfies both schools of thought in that it combines local control with university leadership," said the new junior college president who has been superintendent of the East Richland district since 1956.

Staff for the college will include seven instructors and four administrators. The latter include Purdy; Gail Lathrop (EIU, Class of 1950), administrative assistant to the superintendent and president of the college; Dr. George R. Darnes, who was employed February 1 as the college's academic dean, and R. K. Provines, assistant superintendent.

Three Eastern officials appointed by President Quincy Doudna are serving as a coordinating committee to work with the East Richland District. They are Dr. Asa M. Ruyle, director of regional services, chairman; Dr. Glenn E. Williams, associate dean of academic services; and Dr. Martin Schaefer, director of extension. Dr. Schaefer will become dean of Eastern's Faculty for Professional Studies Aug. 10 and Dr. Ruyle will become assistant to the president July 1.

The EIU coordinating committee and representatives of various departments at Eastern screened recommendations in March from more than 200 applicants for the seven community college positions. The college teaching faculty will be completely separate from the staff of East Richland High School.

Purdy said that all phases of the college's operation, including faculty selection, are being worked out carefully to provide students of the area equal opportunity for an education of high quality. Future accreditation of the college has also been a major concern. "Every aspect of the total program which would help to insure future accreditation has been carefully studied," he said.

Affiliation Praised

Purdy and Lathrop concurred with Dr. Darnes when the latter said that the "one outstanding quality of the community college was its affiliation with Eastern." Purdy said, "We have not been disappointed one time. We have had complete confidence in the University. In each area of development, we have had the complete cooperation and assistance of the University's trained personnel."

When the Olney community college opens this fall it will offer a first-year program of courses in biological sciences, botany, business, English, French, health education, history, library science, mathematics, physical education, speech, and zoology. The college will offer work toward an Associate of Arts Degree and business certificates for persons desiring to become general office workers, typists, and stenographers. All credits earned by students will be comparable to those obtained at Eastern.

Classrooms and offices will be housed in a two-story frame building given to the district in 1961 by the Pure Oil Company. The oil company gift also included five additional buildings and 14½ acres of land. One of the structures, a three-bedroom house, will serve as the student union.

The first floor of the main building will house five teaching stations, while the second floor will accommodate a sixth teaching station and a student assembly room. About one-half of the second floor will not be ready for use until the 1964-65 school year.

Workmen are continuing to get the buildings ready for use. Partitions in what was the oil company's office building have been removed to provide for the desired number of teaching stations and offices. Redecoration of the building's interior was scheduled to begin the second week of April.

The heating plant has been rehabilitated and placed into operation. Fire safety measures as recommended by the State Fire Marshal are being met.

Extension Center Planned

Purdy said plans call for the building to be ready for use by university extension classes this summer. He expressed the hope that the community college might become a major center for extension classes. Such a development would tend to popularize the extension program, he said. One of the offerings this summer is to be a speed reading program sponsored by the district.

The immediate concern of East Richland officials is to secure a faculty and get ready for the opening term. But plans are already being considered for the future. Funds were available this year for only one laboratory. Facilities for the teaching of chemistry and physics are to be added for the second year. Humanities offering, limited in the first year, will be increased to include art, music, and psychology in the second year.

Dean Darnes said that the college's first plans for expansion will include programs for either vocational training or nurses training. A major factor in determining if the nurses program will eventually be offered is legislation now pending in the Illinois General Assembly. The proposal would reduce formal classroom training for nurses from three to two years. The nurses training program would be worked out in cooperation with the Olney Memorial Hospital.

Purdy, left, and Dr. George R. Darnes, the community college's academic dean, check the latest figures on applications for the opening term. School officials have already issued more than 100 temporary permits to enter.

The college has the full intent of developing not only a high quality academic curriculum but also a "technical and vocational program to meet the needs of the area," said Darnes. The vocational program will, when developed, carry with it limited general academic subjects which will not be transferable.

Enthusiasm High

Enthusiasm for the new college in Olney is increasing, if anything, according to Purdy. Citizens of the district voted by an overwhelming margin September 15, 1962, to establish a junior college district. The junior college and high school districts have the same boundaries.

The college has already been named the beneficiary of several wills and annuity policies. Cash grants totalling $2,100 have been received for the development of a library. A book fair to be sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce will collect books for the library. Books not usable in the college library will be sold.

Community college officials have also been pleasantly surprised by the response of students. Darnes, who has been around the area telling high school students about the college's offerings, said 212 application forms had been requested by the end of March. Nearly 100 temporary permits to enter have already been granted. The college is gearing for an initial enrollment of 150.

"If we settle down with 120 or 130 students we'll be beyond our original expectations," said Purdy. He attributes the response to the emphasis being placed on a quality program.

Early applications indicate that the junior college students will have scholastic abilities similar to those of students in other colleges and universities in Illinois. "I have been extremely pleased with the quality of students who have applied so far," said Darnes. A survey of the applications also indicates that the students will be about 60 per cent boys and 40 per cent girls. Eighty-three per cent said they intended to attend full time, while 11 per cent indicated an interest in a part-time program. Seventy-three per cent said they desired to attend a normal school day. Eighteen per cent indicated a preference for attending in the afternoons and evenings.

The distribution of prospective students is also impressive. Among the communities where applications have been requested are St. Francisville, Albion, Lawrenceville, Palestine, Hutsonville, Casey, Oblong, Newton, Noble, Clay City, and Flora. At least one-fourth of the senior class at East Richland High School in Olney presently plans to enroll.

Admission Requirements

Students seeking admission to the college must have a certificate or diploma from a recognized secondary school. Transfer students not in "good standing" at their previous school will enter on probation. The "lowest-third" requirements and restrictions in effect at Eastern will not apply to the Olney Community College. Students living in the East Richland District will be assessed only a $10 activity fee. Illinois residents living outside the district will pay fees of $5.66 for each quarter hour of study, with a maximum charge of $100.56 per quarter. Out-of-state students will pay $10.42 per quarter hour, with a maximum charge of $176.72

Given to the school district by the Pure Oil Company, the community college's classroom building will open with six teaching stations and facilities for seven faculty members.

A three-bedroom house on the community college campus will be converted to a student union. Campus facilities include six building and 14½ acres of land.

per quarter. The maximum charges include the activity fee.

No formal program of student activities has been planned for the first year. During the year, the college will develop plans for a special activity program designed to meet the needs of its students. Among the activities to be considered are debate, publications, art, music, theatre, and interscholastic athletics. Early in the year, the students will organize a student government. Working with a faculty sponsor, the student government will recommend regulations for the student union and campus social events.

Cultural opportunities will also be made available through the activity fee. Each student will hold full membership in the Olney Concert Association. Special assemblies, speakers, and forums will round out the schedule.

Site for many of the school activities will be the classatorium now under construction at East Richland High School. The first divisible auditorium-type structure in Illinois, the classatorium will be available for college programs and productions. It will be air-conditioned and contain closed-circuit conduits for mass media and telecasting. Scheduled completion date for the building is July 1964.

Purdy received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Washington University in St. Louis. He has also done advanced graduate study at the same school. Darnes went to Olney from Oklahoma College for Women, where he was chairman of the Fine Arts Division and Department of Music for eight years. Lathrop, who also received the master's degree from Eastern, joined the East Richland staff in 1954. Provines received his bachelor's degree from Eastern in 1933 and his master's from the University of Illinois.

The executive committee of the Alumni Association is planning to hold a late spring meeting in Olney. At that time, the alumni officers will visit the new community college. Lathrop will be in charge of the session, along with Harry Hillis, '51.

Doudna Appoints Four To New EIU Posts

Zeigel Named Vice-President

Appointments to four major administrative and faculty positions at Eastern Illinois University were recently announced by President Quincy Doudna. The new posts were created as part of a reorganization plan authorized by the Teachers College Board in May, 1961.

The appointments are: Dr. William H. Zeigel, vice president for administration; Dr. Martin Schaefer, dean of the Faculty for Professional Education; Dr. Asa M. Ruyle, assistant to the president; and Dr. Donald A. Rothschild, head of the department of psychology. All are members of the Eastern staff.

Dr. Zeigel, presently dean of student academic services, will assume his new post July 1. President Doudna said the vice president for administration will be "responsible for the day to day, quarter to quarter administration of the university under the general direction of the president."

With the establishment Aug. 10 of the Faculty for Professional Education, Dr. Schaefer will become its first dean. He is currently director of extension and assistant director of the School of Elementary and Junior High School Teaching. The Faculty for Professional Education will supersede the department of education. Dr. Emma Reinhardt, now head of the department of education, will retire Aug. 10 after 36 years at Eastern.

Dr. Ruyle, director of regional services since 1956, will become the assistant to the president July 1. The position was created to relieve the president's office of many administrative details, according to Dr. Doudna. When he assumes his new position, Dr. Ruyle will continue his responsibilities for public relations and alumni services.

Dr. Rothschild, professor of education and psychology, will begin a two-year appointment as head of the department of psychology Sept. 15 when that department becomes operational. He will continue as director of testing services.

William H. Zeigel

President Doudna announced that certain administrative operations would be shifted after the new positions go into effect.

The administration of student teaching will be transferred Sept. 15 from the office of student academic services to the Faculty for Professional Education. This transfer, said President Doudna, is "in recognition of the fact that student teaching is a phase of the professional preparation of prospective teachers."

Responsibility for admissions and high school relations and the extension services will go to the office of student academic services. These programs are now administered by the division of regional services.

The EIU president also indicated that he plans to establish next fall two graduate departments within the Faculty for Professional Education.

One of the proposed departments will develop and administer a sixth-year program in educational administration and supervision and conduct the master's program in the same field. Dr. Schaefer will also serve as chairman of that department.

The other department will administer a sixth-year program in counseling and guidance. Development of that program is already underway.

Dr. Doudna, president of Eastern since 1956, first outlined his views on a possible reorganization of the university in his 1957 inaugural address.

At that time he called for a teacher preparation program which would do three things: (1) provide the "breadth" of knowledge necessary to the educated person, (2) develop the "depth" of knowledge necessary to the teacher in his subject matter fields, and (3) provide the professional training required for teaching.

In announcing Dr. Schaefer's appointment, President Doudna said, "The role of the Faculty for Professional Education is to give the professional work needed by the undergraduate as he prepares to teach."

The EIU president said the college of Letters and Sciences and the Dick Carmichael, Decatur senior, led the Eastern cagers in scoring as the Panthers came through the 1962-63 season with a mark of eight wins and 16 losses. Carmichael netted 329 points in the 24 games for an average of 13.7. Forward Bill Geurin, Peoria, was the Panther's top marksman, hitting at a .427 clip from the field. Leading free-thrower for the second straight season was senior Larry Weck, Robinson. Weck connected on 43 of 61 attempts. In the team department, Eastern averaged 68.5 points per game to their opponents' 73.3. The Panthers out-rebounded their opponents 61.3 to 57.2. Playing their final season with the cagers were Carmichael, Weck, Lloyd Eggers, and reserves Larry Roland and Dick Planck.

Eastern's gymnasts finished a surprising second in the Interstate Conference meet after winning only two of nine dual meets during the season. Coach Bob Hussey's charges tallied 110½ points in the meet, only two shy of champion Western's 112½. Illinois State was third with 103; Northern was fourth with 89½; and Central Michigan was fifth with 88. Individual championships were won by the Panthers' Vic Aviglieno, parallel bars, and Don Clegg, still rings. Aviglieno was Eastern's leading point producer in the meet with 28 points. Bill Eads netted 23 points.

Swimming Coach Bill Groves will probably never forget the 1963 conference meet at DeKalb. Carrying a 12-1 record into the loop battles, the Panthers were heavily favored to walk away with the title. And for a few brief seconds, they were the champions, but not for long. Going into the final event, the 400-yard medley, the Panthers needed a win to capture the championship. And win they did, but some of the jubilant Eastern tankers leaped into the pool to celebrate their winning the championship. Inasmuch as all the swimmers from the other teams had not completed the relay, the rash act cost Eastern 14 points and the championship. Instead of bringing home the title, the Panthers brought home a solid fourth-place finish. Mike LaForest and George Steigelman led the Panthers to their best season. In the conference meet, LaForest won two individual events and Steigelman one.

Ron Semetis

Coach Bob Eudeikis guided the Panther wrestling squad to an Interstate Conference championship and a 7-2-1 record over the season. Eastern won only three of the ten individual championships, but all Panther entries made the semi-finals to run up a title-clinching 48 points. Western finished in second place with 22 points. Conference champions are Ron Semetis, 130-pounds; Jack Gardner, 167-pounds; and LeRoy Blackful, heavyweight. Blackful had not wrestled before the middle of the 1963 season. Second-place honors were won by Ken Cummins (115), Clyde Mitchell (123), Bruce Strom (147), Willie Myers (157), Don Neece (177) and Dennis Fickes (191). Neece compiled the best individual record over the season, finishing with a mark of 9-3-0.

Eastern's tennis team is in for what Coach Rex V. Darling calls a "building year." Three lettermen will pace the Panther netters. They are Tom Huffman, who represented Eastern in the NAIA tournament last season, Gary Towler, and Mannie Velasco. Towler and Valesco were No. 3 doubles champions of the IIAC last year. On the schedule: April 12, at Washington University; April 19, Northern; April 20, at Principia; April 23, at Illinois State; April 27, Bradley; May 3, Illinois State; May 4, Principia; May 7, Washington University; May 10, at Western; May 11, at Northern; and May 14-18, IIAC Meet at Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Fifteen lettermen lead Maynard "Pat" O'Brien's tracksters into action April 9 when Bradley University invades Charleston. Four of the returnees are record-holders. They are Marvin Honn, 880; Ben Ward, shot put; Jerry Grandone, high hurdles; and Bill Miller, javelin. Remainder of the schedule: April 13, Eastern Relays; April 20, at Northern; April 23, at Millikin; April 27, Illinois State; May 4, State Meet at Normal; May 8, at Western; May 11, Elmhurst Relays; and May 17-18, IIAC Meet at Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Golf Coach Bob Carey's golfers, with two lettermen returning, faces a difficult schedule. Regulars back from 1962 are Mark Michael, Sullivan, Ind., and George Fielding, Wellington. In addition to three other returning upperclassmen, Carey has a top freshman candidate in Larry Sunday, Clay City. The schedule: April 9, at St. Louis University; April 16, Indiana State and Wabash College; April 20, Northern, Concordia, and Illinois at Champaign; April 23, at Indiana State; April 30, Bradley; May 4, at Illinois State; May 7, at Northern; May 13-14, IAC Meet at Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Centerfielder Nick Balodimas, sophomore from Chicago, foul tips a pitch in Eastern's 8-0 loss to Illinois Wesleyan at Lincoln Field.

A 28- game schedule is on tap for the Panther baseball team. The Panther nine opened with a double win over Millikin at Decatur, but dropped an 8-0 decision to Illinois Wesleyan in their debut at Lincoln Field. Sixteen non-conference tilts are on the schedule for the squad before it opens a 12-game Interstate Conference card April 26 against Western at Charleston. The schedule: April 9, Indiana Central (2); April 10, at Washington Univ.; April 16, at Lewis College (2); April 20, at Bradley (2); April 22, Indiana State (2); April 26, Western; April 27, Western (2); May 3, Northern; May 4, Northern (2); May 10, at Central Michigan; May 11, at Central Michigan (2); May 17, at Illinois State; May 18, at Illinois State (2).

New Business Degree Approved By Board Of Higher Education

Eastern Illinois University has been given approval by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to begin offering a bachelor's degree in the field of business.

Eastern President Quincy Doudna told the board that the B. S. in business degree joins with the Bachelor of Science in Education degree as the second professional degree of the college.

The University plans to propose certain other professional degrees in the future, Dr. Doudna said.

Eastern's president pointed out that the proposed degree and those planned for the future "will have the same basic general requirements designed to give proper breadth to the education of our graduates no matter what field they may enter."

"While we continue to regard the preparation of teachers as our major concern, we have long been meeting the needs of a limited number of students not planning to teach. This new degree will help us accomplish our purpose better in the field of business," said President Doudna.

Eastern established a new School of Business last October. The new degree will be offered by the School.

The director of the School of Business said that Eastern had planned its business degree to appeal to all types of business majors.

"A block of time has been retained for elective use by the student to enable him to achieve some depth in an area or areas related to his major. For instance, an accounting major might want to take additional work in economics or mathematics, or both.

James Giffin

"A marketing major would probably expect to take work in some depth in psychology, or sociology, or economics" explained Dr. James Giffin.

When the degree was first proposed to the Teachers College Board last August, R. A. Stipes, board chairman, termed the degree "the right step toward setting up a program which would be interesting to the student aiming at a career in small business."

The requirements for the degree, Stipes noted, will give the student an understanding of all facets of the world of business.

The degree's requirements are an attempt to make the very best possible use of four college years, and at the same time, "leave the student the freedom to elect work of his own choosing," said Dr. Giffin.
